BUSY PROGRAM FOR 1939 PLANNED BY ANTIOCH FIREMEN

Benefit Show March 31 and Annual Dinner in Feb. Coming Events

The appointing of committees to handle the various activities for a full 1939 program made for a busy meeting when the Antioch firemen held their January business session Tuesday evening.

Jim McMillen of Antioch, nationally known wrestler and athlete, will be presented in a match in his "home town" for the first time on March 31, when the committee for the purchase of new uniforms for the firemen is sponsoring a wrestling and boxing show.

The match will be held in the Antioch Township High School gymnasium. All proceeds will be applied toward the purchase of new uniforms. The annual dinner for the firemen and their ladies will be held in February.

County Convention

Plans for taking part in the annual Lake County Firemen's convention to be held in Highland Park Monday, May 22, were also made. The Antioch firemen will enter a float in the parade and will also compete in the ladder-raising, hose-coupling, first aid and tug-of-war events.

On Monday, June 26, the Antioch fire department will be host to the Lake county firemen at their monthly meeting. A full day's program is planned.

Other activities on the schedule of the local firemen include a complete revision of the fire department by-laws, to be acted upon some time during the spring.

Tuberculosis Association Plans Annual Meet Feb. 1

Election of officers and board members will take place at the annual meeting of the Lake County Tuberculosis association, to be held Wednesday noon, Feb. 1, in the Waukegan hotel.

Talks reviewing the medical and financial work of the Lake County Tuberculosis sanatorium to date will be given by Dr. Petter and James Stiles of the Sanatorium Board. Mr. Shahan, executive secretary of the Illinois Tuberculosis association, has been invited to be present and give a short message from the State Association.

Mrs. Sidney Barnstable, Lake Villa; W. Churchill, Grayslake; Mrs. J. B. Harding, Mundelein; Max Mer, Libertyville; Carl Nielsen, Lake Forest; Rev. Herbert Prince, Lake Forest; Dr. V. R. Sleeter, Lake Bluff; Gustav Stoep, Prairie View, and Mrs. Robney Swift, Highland Park, are among the directors whose terms expire this year. The unexpired term of Mrs. Harry Clark, Barrington, who has resigned, must also be filled.

Officers of the association are: president, Dr. E. H. Smith, Libertyville; vice president; Mrs. A. H. Niblack, Lake Forest; vice president, Dr. Theo Proxmire, Lake Forest; secretary, Mrs. Girard Fossland, Winthrop Harbor; and treasurer, Harry A. Hall, Waukegan.

The meeting and luncheon are to be open to the public.

"Checkers and Chess" Club at High School

That the time-honored games of checkers and chess have their appeal to youthful as well as older minds is proved by a new organization at Antioch Township High school this year, the "Checkers and Chess" club.

The organization is headed by R. Brogan, president; P. Hughes, vice-president; D. Thill, secretary and D. Sherwood, treasurer.

Another active organization is the Stamp club, which is planning a banquet and exhibition early in March. Officers are Dale Smith, president; Robert Dressel, vice-president; Mary Osmond, secretary; Robert Strang, treasurer, and Miss Smith, faculty adviser.

McMillen to Meet Kay Sat. at North Chicago

Jim McMillen of Antioch will wrestle Rudy Kay, Chicago, in the semi-final of a match between Fred von Schacht and Wladyslaw Talun in the North Chicago auditorium Saturday evening, Jan. 28. The event will be a benefit for Holy Rosary church.

TO WRESTLE HERE

Although "Jim" McMillen is a wrestler of national renown his appearance on a benefit program for the Antioch fire department March 31 in the Antioch High School gymnasium will be the first "professional" one he has made here.

FARMERS STUDY ILLINOIS MILK CONTROL BILL

Proposal May Be Recommended at Marketing Conference Tuesday

To have or not to have a state milk control law is a problem gripping the attention of Illinois dairymen. It is expected to be a major issue at the milk marketing conference during the Illinois Agricultural Association annual meeting, Stevens Hotel, Chicago, Jan. 31.

At a meeting of producers representing most of the milk markets in the state in the offices of the Illinois Agricultural Association, Jan. 20, a proposed milk control law was read and considered. A committee appointed at the meeting is giving the bill further study before recommending action upon it.

"Every angle of state milk control is being carefully studied by producer cooperative groups to eliminate flaws which might result from hasty, ill-considered action," said Wilfred Shaw, director of milk marketing with the Illinois Agricultural Association. "Most producers favor a law that can be applied to a market only when a majority of dairymen demand it."

"Other favored regulations are periodic audits of dealers' books to ascertain the amount of each class of milk being handled, and a quasi-price schedule set by a market administrator appointed by a state board."

Other issues to be considered at the milk conference are the value of co-operatives, sanitary regulations, and the question, "Should cooperatives stress production methods in addition to marketing services?"

District Governor Visits Antioch Lions

Antioch Lions were hosts to visiting officials at their dinner meeting Monday night at the Ball hotel.

Among the honored guests were John G. Rietz, of Chicago, district governor of Lions International; Russ Boehm, of Libertyville, zone chairman of the local district; Willis Overholzer, president of the Libertyville Lions, and President Chas. F. Lanwermyer and Secretary Winston of the Waukegan club. The visiting officials were introduced by Zone Chairman Boehm.

District Governor Rietz complimented the local club on its achievements as a service organization in this community. The other visiting officials spoke briefly.

A committee is busy making arrangements for a dinner and dance to be held in the near future. Invited guests will be wives of members and all those who assisted with the festival last August.

Wilmot H. S. Band Will Buy Uniforms

A highly creditable performance was given by the Union Free High School band at Wilmot in its second concert of the season, last Wednesday evening.

Russell Ende directs the group, which now numbers 40 persons. The concert was given as a benefit for the fund the band is raising for the purchase of new uniforms.

LEGION POST PLANS WASHINGTON DAY DINNER AND DANCE

Third Annual Event to Be Held February 18 at Pasadena Gardens

The third annual dinner and dance sponsored by the Antioch American Legion post will be held on Saturday, February 18, at Pasadena Gardens, members of the committee on arrangements announced today.

Members of the Post's firing squad were named by Commander Warren Edwards as the committee for the event. Captain Archie Maples of the squad serves as chairman of the committee and the members are Walter Hills, Dr. L. J. Zimmerman, Mike Whited, Roger Miller, Bill Phillips, O. S. Klass, Wm. White, Ray Winfield, Lee Waters, L. D. Powles, Harry Messing, Lon Runyard, Ray Webb and Earl Horton. This is the same committee that was in charge of last year's successful dinner and dance.

Arrangements for the use of Pasadena Gardens for the event were made through the courtesy of Ansley Whiteside, genial young proprietor of the popular recreation center a mile north of Antioch.

A good orchestra will be engaged, committee members say, and tickets for the dinner and dance are being sold by Legion men for 50 cents per person.

PLAN CAUCUS FOR JUDICIAL ELECTIONS

Republicans to Select Their Lake County Candidate This Coming Week

A date for a caucus of the Lake County Republican Central committee to select a candidate for judge in the seventeenth judicial district will be announced some time within the coming week, according to William M. Marks, Lake Villa, chairman of the committee.

At the district convention in Rockford April 15, delegates from Lake, McHenry, Winnebago and Boone counties will nominate three judicial candidates for the election on June 5.

The present office holders are Judges Arthur E. Fisher, Rockford, and Ralph J. Dady, Waukegan, who are candidates for re-election, and William L. Pierce, Belvidere, who is so far the only candidate from Boone and McHenry counties.

A measure proposing to divide the Seventeenth judicial district into two districts, composed of Lake and McHenry, and Winnebago and Boone counties, respectively, is at present before the Illinois general assembly. A resolution opposing the plan was adopted by the Lake county board of supervisors on Jan. 10. The Lake County Bar association is said to favor the plan, however.

Mrs. Crittenden was the wife of Asher Crittenden, who survives her. Both were well known here.

Also surviving her are three sisters, Mrs. Anna Fitzgerald, Kenosha, Wis.; Mrs. William Grey, Ashkun, Ill., and Mrs. George Theurer, Chicago, and three brothers, Henry Zerfas, Castlewood, S. D.; Matt Zerfas, Watertown, S. D., and Emmett Zerfas, Sioux Falls, S. D.

The body will be at the Quietdale Funeral home in Waukegan until Friday morning.

Lily Lake "Village" Election Called Illegal

The special election at which Lily Lake residents recently voted, 38-1, to classify the community as a village was illegal, objectors to the plan have claimed in obtaining permission to have the case reviewed in the McHenry county circuit court. The plaintiffs claim that there were not enough names on the petition to call a special election, and that there are not enough residents to classify the community as a village.

LIVESTOCK CLASS TO HEAR DUNCAN

Handler of Famous Marlbor Sheep Will Speak Here Wednesday Evening

Farmers, and sheepmen in particular, have an interesting evening in store for them next Wednesday when the subject of "Sheep Raising" will be taken up in the Livestock class at Antioch Township High school, at 8 p. m.

The speaker will be William Duncan, shepherd of the famous show flocks of Marlbor Farms, at Libertyville. Duncan, who was formerly director of animal husbandry at the Alendale Boys' school at Lake Villa, became farm manager at Marlbor about ten years ago, giving especial attention to sheep breeding. Each year Duncan exhibits the sheep at livestock shows throughout the United States and Canada, including the world famous International show at Montreal. Hundreds of premiums earned during the last few years attest the fact that Duncan well merits his reputation of being one of the best sheep showmen in America.

Members of Mrs. Ruby Richey's home-making class will study the selection, preparation and serving of foods. "Fancy touches," food prices and substitutes for various types of foods will be discussed.

Last evening, discussions on health and food were featured in the home making class, and a discussion of the principles of heredity in livestock raising was presented in the livestock class under the charge of C. L. Kutil.

County Tax Values Are Million Less Than 1937

The 1938 taxing value of Lake county is $82,646,334, more than a million dollars lower than last year's value of $84,030,781, and more than $200,000 lower than the 1936 valuation of $82,833,518, according to figures made public by the state tax commission.

Railroad and capital stock assessments for Lake county are the lowest in the past two generations.

In other years the state commission included railroad rolling stock, right of way, trackage and other properties near the tracks in their estimates. For 1938, assessors were instructed to exempt the actual right of way and tracks. Valuations by the state tax commission on the five railroads in the county for 1938, exclusive of the right of way and tracks, total $3,127,844.

Beware of Thin Ice!

"Be careful on the ice, and if it's thin—Keep off!" is the advice old-time residents of the lake region, who know the dangers of the lakes, have felt impelled to give following several accidents and near-accidents this winter.

The rescue of a young high school girl from nine feet of water when she broke through the ice while skating, a week or so ago, brought out requests for caution.

Other accidents have not had as happy a termination. One at the same lake a month ago resulted in a fatality, when two were rescued at considerable risk to the rescuers.

A lack of sustained cold weather has kept the ice from freezing thick this winter, and a covering of snow has added to its treachery.

Persons who "take a chance" on thin ice are risking not only their own lives, but possibly those of persons who come to their aid in case they break through, it is pointed out.

"Winter sports on the lakes, such as ice boating and skating, are grand. Let's keep them safe, too!" plead residents of the beautiful lake area.

Let's Stop and Think

No one will deny that the United States government is a great institution; that it has done things that no other government in all history has ever accomplished. For instance, during the fiscal year of 1938 it collected in taxes approximately $5,659,000,000, which is the largest sum any government ever collected in any year.

That vast sum is just about a fourth of all the world's monetary gold, but despite this unparalleled "expense account" our federal government still operates at a deficit. And anyone who thinks the end is in sight has only to look about him—at new bureau after bureau and at the growing national debt—to realize that the tax burden is going to get heavier.

Perhaps this is an optimist's view, but maybe, after all, that 1938 tax load will be worth all it cost. Certainly it will be if it compels us to re-examine the whole question of the relationship between government and the citizen taxpayer, for the world today seems to be moving too rapidly along the road of greater subordination of the individual to the state. In some lands that subordination is complete; the citizen simply exists for the convenience of the state.

In America things have not reached that point. That approach will be dangerously near, however, if taxation is allowed to advance to a point so high that it will constitute virtual slavery to government.

A good mental exercise right now would be to remember and analyze the oldest truth ever spoken about our 151-year-old democracy—that a democratic government exists to serve the citizens, and that as a general thing it serves him best by leaving him alone.

The Penalty of Success

It is likely that almost everyone is addicted to occasional "day dreaming," and probably the most popular dream of idle dreamers is that some day they will be successful business men; that their worries will be minimized; that they can just sit back and take life easy while the business carries on.

There has come now, however, a rude awakening. The successful businessman has many more problems than most people suspect; with success his worries have increased rather than decreased, and life for him is anything but a bed of roses. The awakening comes in the form of an official report to the President on the subject of statistics, questionnaires and, in general, red tape.

In one year, the Central Statistical Board reports to the Chief Executive, individuals and business concerns in the United States had to answer 135,000,000 questionnaires for various Federal agencies. (One concern alone had to fill out 141,000 forms.)

Some sets of questions are even duplicated as many as four times, the Board found in its study. "For example," the report states, "a very large proportion of all employers are called upon four separate times to report the individual earnings of a substantial number of their employees during a given time." And the fact that an employer has answered the same questionnaire two or three times doesn't relieve him of the responsibility of answering a fourth one if some government agent asks for it.

If successful businessmen, then, have any time for day dreaming, it is likely that they dream of the day when being a success won't be such a complicated state.

Life After Forty

A survey has been made among the industries of America on the question of whether older employees are being replaced by younger men. The findings show that a greater proportion of workers over 40 years of age are employed now than in pre-depression days.

This should serve to refute the claims of labor agitators that employers have no use for a man after he has passed the 40 mark. Also, it should bolster the self-confidence of older men who have the notion they are passing the age of usefulness.

Older workers are, of course, recognized as being more experienced and skilled, but there are other factors. Here is how the employers evaluated the "old timers" and the young ones in the survey:

A majority thought they were equally efficient, and a large percentage thought the old workers were even more efficient; a majority thought old workers were more cooperative; a majority said both groups were about equally vulnerable to illness and accidents; and a majority thought the veterans were as easy to adjust to new conditions as the younger workers.

Some may dispute that life begins at forty, but certainly life doesn't end there.

While returning home from Waukegan Sunday last and when in the near vicinity of Wadsworth Mr. N. Burnette of this village and his mother were startled to see a little tot scarcely two and one half summers old walking along in the road ahead of their team. Mr. Burnette brought the little wanderer a short distance to the home of Mr. Cashmore, but was surprised to learn there they knew nothing about the child nor to whom it belonged. The little traveler was left with Mr. Cashmore's people, but to whom it belongs or from whence it comes seems to be a mystery.

Ice from Hooker lake at Salem was condemned and will not be cut this

It will take two years more at least to finish J. Ogden Armonur's one hundred roomed marble palace west of Lake Forest. When it is considered that the naval training school will not be finished until 1910, that Louis F. Swift plans a residence to rival the Armour palace and estate, and that Sheldon university, to cost $1,000,000, is yet unbegun, it is easily seen that the county abounds in great projects that will employ hundreds of men of the building trades.

PETER DECLARES HIS LOVE

LESSON TEXT—John 21:11-19.
GOLDEN TEXT—If ye love me, keep my commandments.—John 14:15.

"Lovest thou me?" This is the question our Lord asked Peter. It comes to us today. Do we love our Lord? It is a simple question, but also a very searching one. "We may know much, and do much, and profess much, and talk much, and work much, and give much, and go through much, and make much show in our religion, and yet be dead before God from want of love. . . . There is no life where there is no love. . . . Knowledge, orthodoxy, correct views . . . a respectable moral life—all these do not make up a true Christian. There must be some personal feeling toward Christ" (J. C. Ryle).

The instructive story, the center of which is Peter's declaration of love for Christ, presents a picture of a life of true devotion and service to the Lord we love.

I. Fishing at Christ's Command (v. 11).

Peter had led the disciples in a fruitless fishing expedition (vv. 2, 3). There may have been some unbelieving self-will in his "I go a-fishing." It may also have been the need of food on the part of the disciples who had not yet been sent forth to preach. But in any case they caught nothing until they went to work at the Lord's direction.

Useless and pathetic is the effort of the Church to win men to Christ except as He directs and blesses the work. He knows when, where, and how we ought to fish for men. Let us seek His guidance rather than suffer the disappointment which goes with man-directed campaigns and "drives." As a matter of fact, we need more divine directing and less human driving.

II. Fellowship With the Lord (vv. 12-14).

There are some folk who seem to think that following Christ is a doleful matter, devoid of every pleasant contact. Jesus never taught any such thing. He attended weddings and dinners even in the homes of those despised by men. Remember that He always did it for their spiritual good, not merely for His own enjoyment; and that He always brought the gathering up to His own spiritual level, rather than stooping to any worldly or wicked standards.

Here we find Him with a glowing fire upon which fish is broiling and with bread ready for the hungry fishermen. It is just life, Him thus to meet in most delightful and satisfying fellowship those who serve Him. Draw up to the fire, Christian friends who are standing afar off. You may be so timid that, like the disciples, you will not dare to call Him by name (v. 12), but if you will come you will find that the precious fellowship will soon warm your heart.

III. Feeding His Flock (vv. 15-17). Many (perhaps most) after-dinner speeches and conversations yield little profit. Here is an occasion when such was not the case. One wonders whether we would not be wise to take the suggestion and turn our thoughts and those of our dinner guests to spiritual things. Surely it should be so among Christian friends and in a Christian home.

Three times Peter is asked to declare his love for Christ. Such a public confession was quite in place, before the man who had thrice denied his Lord is restored to a place of leadership. The words "more than these" (v. 15), indicate that Jesus was asking of him a high measure of devotion. It is no more than He has a right to expect of us.

The expression of love to Christ means practically nothing except as it manifests itself in service. We, like Peter, are to be diligent about feeding His flock, whether they be the young and inexperienced lambs, or the mature sheep of the fold. Observe that we are to catch the fish (the unconverted) and feed the flock (the redeemed). Sometimes it seems that we are trying to catch the Christians to forward some scheme of advancement, and failing to win the unconverted, because we are feeding them spiritual food that belongs to the flock of God.

IV. Following Christ to the End (vv. 18, 19).

The Christian (and surely the Christian worker) is to glorify God even by his death (v. 19). What a significant reply John Wesley made when his followers were criticized: "At any rate, our people die well." Peter was to go on to the end, knowing that he faced martyrdom for Christ.

But we are not only called to die like Christians, we are to live for Him. When Jesus "had spoken this, he saith unto him, Follow me" (v. 19). Just as we said that the Church needs more divine directing and less human driving, so we say that the crying need of the Church now is not more leaders, but a greater host of faithful followers of Jesus. Will you, because you love Him, follow Him in life and death?

Youth and Age Err as Drivers

Middle-Aged Persons Most Reliable at Wheel, Yale Expert Finds.

NEW HAVEN.—Dr. Harry R. DeSilva, conducting a program of driver research at Yale's Institute of Human Relations, classifies youthful and elderly drivers as the most unreliable on the highways.

"Most of our elderly motorists," he said, "learned to drive relatively late in life when their habits were rather inflexible. Elderly persons learn more slowly and when they have attained a minimum standard of skill are more likely to be satisfied than youngsters. Many have never pushed on to the higher level of skill reached by present-day young people, so many of whom receive vigorous training followed by an examination.

"Add to this fact that elderly persons learned with old, noisy, slow cars with high seats and correspondingly easy visibility on uncongested highways, and one sees a reason for present-day maladjustments among our 'old-timers.'"

Youth Lacks Restraint.

Youths in their teens and early twenties, he finds, while more skillful, "have the greatest accident incidence."

"They drive more rapidly and travel farther than older drivers. Having less experience and responsibilities (there are fewer car owners and fewer married men in the younger age group) they undoubtedly drive with less restraint and are more interested in getting places in a hurry. They have less insight into their own faults and into the possible defects of their cars. Since they are continually exploring new and unfamiliar roads they are less acquainted with the dangers that may confront them on the highway.

"Their ability to respond to complex situations and emergencies is not as good as it will be in later years. The chief redeeming virtue of young people is that they have keener eyes, quicker reactions and a better co-ordination."

Drivers Past 35 Safer.

The middle-aged drivers, between the ages of 30 and 50, he said, "have more experience and more responsibilities and have a better accident rate despite the fact that they drive almost as fast and as far as the younger group. An outstanding paradox of middle-aged drivers is that during the period of fewest accidents (40-50 miles an hour) there is the greatest incidence of alcoholic drivers."

Dr. DeSilva suggested a "driver clinic" for elderly motorists.

"Drivers, like sick men, can be cured best by helping themselves," he said. "When faced by objective facts old persons can carry out just as successful a self-improvement campaign as young persons.

"Although they may not themselves get into so many accidents, on account of their slower speeds, more leisurely habits of turning corners and more cautious operations at intersections, they may, by hindering the steady flow of traffic, cause others to have accidents."

'Date' Shyness at Toronto U. Now Lost to Students

TORONTO.—The University of Toronto's four-year-old "dime-date bureau" is in danger of death through "starvation," but editors of Varsity, undergraduates' newspaper, proposed to conduct a thorough survey to see if it can not be rejuvenated.

The bureau, established four years ago, arranged dates for students of the university for the cost of 10 cents. Applicants were required to fill out a lengthy form paper, giving their preferences as to height, appearance, interests and social standing of their prospective dates.

The bureau enjoyed a boom until this year when interest suddenly died. Varsity editors, however, indignantly denied suggestions that campus romance was dead and put forward the suggestion that this year's undergraduates are either more bold in their efforts to arrange their own dates or have formed themselves into small "sets" in which they have their own friends.

Atlantic Mail Flights Will Begin Next Spring

LONDON.—The long-awaited Anglo-American North Atlantic air mail service will begin next spring as soon as the ice-blocked harbors of Newfoundland have thawed clear.

In making the announcement the British air ministry revealed that the experimental crossings of the Atlantic by the new Imperial Airways Cabot flying boats, scheduled for this fall, were held up by the recent European crisis.

While the first of a series of American flying boats big enough to cross the ocean with a north-whale mail load has just been completed, three of the eight new British Cabot flying boats will be ready this month.

The rest of the new British flying boats will be in the air by spring. In addition, two D. H. Albatross andplanes are now undergoing final tests, and it is expected they will also be ready for work by then.

'Suwannee River' Facts

Sigmund Spaeth in the Etude says: "Old Folks at Home" is itself an example of the unnatural geography that has at times glorified Dixie, New Hampshire, California, Michigan and other places innumerable. Stephen Foster's original manuscript shows the name of the Pedee river, which obviously invited ridicule. His brother suggested "Suwannee," which was even worse. Finally they took out a map of Florida, and a roving finger eventually stopped at the name of Suwannee. "That's it," cried Steve, "that's it exactly," and so the Suwannee river became immortal."

Nocturnal Birds and Animals

Nocturnal birds and animals include the owl, nightjar, nighthawk, bat, members of the cat family, certain snakes, etc. It is not true to say that these animals and birds can see in the dark or can see better in the dark than in the light. Their eyes are so constructed that they can take advantage of all the light there is, the pupils being capable of expansion and contraction.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Truth" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, January 22.

The Golden Text was, "Ascribe ye greatness unto our God. He is the Rock, his work is perfect: for all his ways are judgment: a God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is he" (Deuteronomy 32:3, 4).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "I will praise thee, O Lord, among the people; I will sing unto thee among the nations. For thy mercy is great unto the heavens, and thy truth unto the clouds" (Psalm 57:9, 10).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mortals try to believe without understanding Truth; yet God is Truth" (p. 312).

GRADUATE CORSETIERE

Mrs. Thomas F. Hunt, of MariAnne's, Antioch, has just finished an intensive course at the Gossard School of Corsetry in New York City. She has received the Gossard diploma of a Graduate Corsetiere.

This diploma is awarded only after passing a rigid examination in all branches of fitting, stock-keeping and selling.

Mrs. Hunt in telling of her experience, spoke particularly of the recent developments in various types of garments which now are known under the general name, corsets. The old idea of subjecting the figure to unnatural pressure has been abandoned and instead, the garments made today are designed to mould and support the figure in a manner that is both comfortable to the wearer and pleasing in appearance. Regardless of whether the garment is a corset, clasp-around, combination, or a step-in, it is intended to conform to the current fashions and there is a proper selection for all types of figures from those that require the simplest girdles to the woman whose health demands a substantial support.

The Use of Shekels

Biblical allusions to shekels and half-shekels are numerous, but much remains to be learned regarding these ancient examples of the die cutter's art. Bronze shekels were first coined at Jerusalem about 132 B. C., while later issues were of gold, silver, copper and potin, a low grade copper washed with silver, notes a Detroit Coin club authority. The famous silver shekels of Israel showed a jeweled chalice, a flowering lily and Hebrew characters meaning "Jerusalem the Holy." Portraits of men or animals are never found on these coins.

FARM
TOPICSCREOSOTE-TREATED
POSTS LAST YEARSOpen-Tank Handling Proved
Only Practical Way.

By R. E. Ford, Forester, Colorado State College Extension Division, WNU Service.

Treatment of fence posts increases their years of service from 3 to 10 times their period of usefulness when not treated, it has been proved by 26 years of tests made in co-operation with the U. S. Forest Service.

Of five different methods of treatment tried, the open-tank creosote treatment proved to be the only practical one. The bark as well as the thin layer of corky inner bark should be removed from timber to be treated as fence posts. The posts should then be piled in the open and allowed to dry thoroughly before they are treated.

The open-tank creosote method of treatment starts with the heating of dry posts in creosote to a temperature of 200 degrees Fahrenheit. Posts of 3 to 4 inches in diameter at the top should be kept at this temperature for one and one-half hours. Posts 5 inches in diameter at the top should be kept at this temperature 2 hours.

At the end of these periods the posts should be transferred immediately to another tank of cold creosote and allowed to cool in that tank. It is necessary to treat only the lower part of the post, about 30 inches, which would include 6 inches above the ground line after the post is set.

The college and similar other tests show that such treatment will increase the useful life of an ash fence post from 7 years, the lifetime of untreated ash post, to 25 years; cottonwood posts from 4 years to 27 years; lodgepole pine, commonly known as native white pine, from 3 years to 30 years; honey locust posts from 12 years to 30 years; Englemann spruce posts from 4 to 23 years. It is not necessary to treat red cedar posts, for these untreated posts last about 30 years.

Right Kind of Feed for Layers Aids Production

It's the right kind of feed that the bird eats in addition to what she needs to maintain her body, that can go into making an egg. And eggs pay for the feed that goes both into production and maintenance.

A good ration for a hen must be palatable and highly digestible. Where the daily allowance is about equal parts grain and mash, advises a writer in Hoard's Dairyman, consider getting the variety mentioned below:

Grain, at least two kinds—40 per cent.

Ground feeds, at least four kinds—30 per cent.

Animal feeds, at least one kind—10 per cent.

Green feeds, large a variety as practical—20 per cent.

It takes about 24 pounds grain and mash daily to maintain 100 four-pound Leghorn hens in 50 to 60 per cent production.

The proportion of grain to mash changes with the season; in winter 12 to 16 pounds, in summer 8 to 10 pounds.

Cider Now 'Apple Juice'

Say good-bye to good old cider. This popular-for-generations drink is doomed, according to specialists at the New York state agricultural experiment station. The reason is not a new form of prohibition, but the development of a "streamlined" method of juice extraction and preservation. The modern process is credited by the experts with yielding a product so superior to old-fashioned cider that fruit growers are being advised to discard the old term and label the new product as "apple juice." Equipment for the new process, designed to replace the old type cider-press, can be constructed on the farm at a small cost, experts at the station report.

Good Scratch for Layers

A good scratch for the laying flock can consist of 200 pounds yellow corn, 100 pounds wheat and 100 pounds oats. A good standard mash ration for the laying flock, says a poultry authority, contains: 100 pounds ground yellow corn, 100 pounds bran, 100 pounds middlings, 100 pounds ground oats, 100 pounds meat scrap, 35 pounds alfalfa leaf meal, 5 quarts cod liver oil, and 3 pounds of salt. If you have milk before the flock at all times, you may reduce the meat scrap by one-half. Provide oyster shells and grit at all times.

Cleaning Teeth of Horses

Usually it is not necessary to clean the teeth of horses and mules after using the dental float. If a pail of water is placed before the horse he will usually rinse his mouth satisfactorily, or if you want to be sure that the material removed from the teeth is washed from the mouth you may do this with a two ounce dose syringe filled with water, or with any other arrangement that will get water into the mouth and let it run out again.

LAKE VILLA SCHOOL NEWS

Upper Room

Bill Effinger, John Christensen, John Meyer, Ervin Barnstable, Joe Nader, and Clarence Benneke played a basketball game Monday, January 23, with Grayslake. They lost 24 to 20. They play Gurnee this coming Saturday. Good luck, boys.

We are taking down our old posters and are putting up Valentine's Day pictures.

Clarence Benneke is going to make a large calendar in front of the room.

Lillian Kelly is absent from school now.

Wednesday evening, January 25, there will be a public meeting at the school at 8:00 o'clock to discuss plans for a gymnasium.

Intermediate Room
Betty Bartlett has come back to school again. We are all very glad to see her.

The intermediate room has brought to school some pictures of health. They are mounted on different kinds of colored paper.

Primary Room

We are working on a little play for the next P. T. A. meeting.

The second and third grades have finished their Science books and are reviewing for a test.

Dallas, Susie, Alice, Bob, Bud, Kathleen and Barbara all received spelling certificates in third grade.

Marlene and Jeanette received them in the second grade.

During the time that so many of our third grade children were absent Kathleen and Barbara wrote some very good stories in English.

The first grade went upstairs to read to Mr. Dixon's room the other day. They did almost as well as Bill Effinger and Johnnie Meyer can do.

The 'Town of Sorrow'

Balfour in Scotland, a pretty little village, is said to owe its name, "Town of Sorrow," to a tradition that all its children were once destroyed by wolves.

Safeguarding Children Is Aim of T. B. Association

The Lake County Tuberculosis association has received 516 responses with an amount of $424.02 from 7,000 reminders mailed last week to persons who are holding Christmas seals. A few organizations and business concerns may vote their contributions in January meetings.

An urgent plea is being made to the 6,484 unanswered reminders asking for help to go over the goal of $8,000. It is only with an increase in yearly funds that additional activities may be carried on by the association.

This year the association wishes to stress the tuberculin testing of the children in Lake county. It is through the safeguarding of children today that it hopes to improve the tuberculosis problems of tomorrow.

The regular chest clinics sponsored by the Lake County Tuberculosis association will be held Wednesday and Friday mornings at St. Theresa hospital from 8:30 to 11 A. M. with Dr. Charles K. Pette as examining physician. New patients are requested to make appointments with the office, Majestic 1805.

Assistant to Kenosha County Agent Named

Mannie E. Frey, a graduate of the college of agriculture at Wisconsin university, where he was a star athlete, has started on his duties as assistant to Kenosha County Agricultural Agent E. V. Ryall.

The appointment was made to permit Ryall to devote more time to work on a land utilization survey being conducted by Kenosha county and four other Wisconsin counties.

Present plans for the land utilization survey in the state call for a study which may extend over a period of five years with the idea of securing a detailed classification of rural land in the county from a standpoint of securing the greatest benefits from proper use of the soil. Results of the surveys in the five counties are expected to provide a basis for the establishment of a long range agricultural program.

Play Has "Little Brown Church" as Its Setting

The "Little Brown Church in the Vale," celebrated in song, is the inspiration for the play of the same name to be given by the J. B. Rot-nour players at the Crystal theatre next Thursday evening, Feb. 2.

The entire action of the play takes part in a church scene, modeled after the real "little brown church," still standing, some three miles from Nashua, Ia., and famed as the setting for hundreds of happy wedding ceremonies. There will be three new members in the cast, including Charles Conley, leading man. Miss Doris Bjerken is also returning as one of the players.

This evening's feature will be "Disappearing Jimmy." Free merchant's tickets may be obtained from concerns listed elsewhere in this issue.

The hotel, a two-story building, covers a full city block on the shore of Lake Geneva.

It has 70 guest rooms.

TWIN LAKES SKATING RINK

A great number from Wilmot are driving over to Twin Lakes these days to take advantage of the excellent skating the business men of the incorporated village of Twin Lakes have provided on the municipal beach.

The snow is kept swept off the ice, the fire department floods the rink frequently so that it is always kept in splendid skating condition. A rink 100 feet by 300 feet has been laid out completely surrounded by a very efficient lighting system with gayly colored light effects. Music for Wednesday, Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon and evening skating is provided and refreshments are served in a large tent on the ice.

A big affair is planned for Sunday when the Kenosha County W. P. A. championship ice skating contest will be held at two o'clock in the afternoon. At least five hundred people enjoyed the rink last Sunday from Chicago, Kenosha and the local area.

Partial Eclipses of Sun and Moon in 1939

Astronomer Also Predicts Meteoric Showers.

EVANSTON, ILL.—Partial eclipses of the sun and moon and two particularly bright meteoric showers will be visible in the United States during the year 1939, according to Dr. Oliver Lee, head of the department of astronomy at Northwestern university.

"There will be two eclipses of the sun and two of the moon during the year," Doctor Lee said. "An annular eclipse of the sun on April 19, beginning around 8:30 in the morning, will be partial in the United States. An annular eclipse is one occurring while the moon is so far away from the earth that a rim of the sun is visible even at the moment of maximum eclipse."

About midnight between October 27 and 28 there will be a partial eclipse of the moon, Doctor Lee said, which will be visible throughout the Americas. A total eclipse of the moon on May 3 will be visible in the eastern hemisphere, and a total eclipse of the sun will occur on October 12, and will be seen as a partial eclipse from western Australia and the southern tip of South America.

"The principal meteoric showers," Doctor Lee said, "will be the Perseids on August 12, early in the morning in the northeastern sky, and the Leonids, which will be seen after midnight on November 14 in the eastern sky."

Meteoric showers, he explained, take their names from constellations in that part of the sky from which the showers seem to come. Other displays during the year will be the Lyrids, early in the evening in the northwest on April 20; the Orionids, late in the evening in the east on October 20, and the Andromids, high in the eastern sky all night on November 24.

"No bright comets are expected this next year," Doctor Lee said, "but there is always the chance that a big comet will stray. Some of them take thousands of years to make one trip around the sun, and many have not been recorded. The last bright comet visible from the earth passed in 1910."

Doctor Lee added that the rest of the winter will be a good time to watch for the Northern lights. These displays are connected with sun spots, which are reaching a maximum in their 11-year period just now.

Texas U. Acquires New World's Oldest Volume

AUSTIN.—A copy of "Doctrina Breve," oldest book printed in America, now rests in the University of Texas library.

The volume, which Librarian Donald Cony says is one of three in the United States, is a catechism printed in Mexico in 1543 and 1544 by Bishop Juan de Zumarraga, whose printing press was the first brought to the New world. Zumarraga had printed books in America three years earlier, but none of those are known to exist now.

The Spanish leather bound in heavy Spanish leather decorated with gold tooling, is in an excellent condition according to Dr. Carlos E. Castaneda, Latin-American librarian at the university.

"Doctrina Breve" is included in a collection of 160 volumes and 50,000 pages of manuscripts obtained by purchase from heirs of Joaquin Garcia Icazbalceta, noted Mexican historian and collector.

Among the manuscripts is a letter from Hernando Cortez to Emperor Charles V of Spain, written on October 15, 1545.

Find Relics of Ancient Bushmen of Australia

DARWIN, AUSTRALIA.—An ancient group of cave temples containing primitive paintings and grisly native relics has been discovered in the Australian bush, about 300 miles from Darwin.

In one of the caves, described as "one of the most primitive art galleries in the world," were two enormous figures in red, white and black, representing a king and queen.

Each cave, he said, had small altars and what undoubtedly were sacrificial stones. Around these are strewn hundreds of sharp, well-fashioned stone knives, spearheads and axeheads of a material not found in the immediate neighborhood.

History of Inn Found Within Walls of 1760

WEST BROOKFIELD, MASS.—While tearing away the interior of Ye Olde Tavern, swept by fire, workmen found a history of the inn written nearly a half-century ago by the late George E. Messenger, former landlord.

The history dated back to the founding of the inn in 1760 by its first landlord, David Hitchcock.

Go Wai Wai and Escape Jitters

Doctor Finds Race in Brazil With No Worries, Nerves Or Divorces.

NEW YORK.—A place where there is no worry, perhaps the last of its kind on earth, today gave civilization a startling medical message.

The place: The jungle home of the Wai Wai Indians in northern Brazil. The message: These Indians have no heart disease, no high blood pressure, no cerebral hemorrhage.

The messenger: Dr. William H. H. Holden, chief surgeon of the American Museum of Natural History, who early this year made the first medical study of this possibly last of completely primitive peoples.

Their immunity is not due to a different physical makeup. In a test which violated a sacred taboo, Dr. Holden discovered that they possess the same capacity for high blood pressure as other humans.

Stone Age People.
The Wai Wai, he says, have a few steel knives, obtained from Indians nearer civilization. Otherwise they are still entirely a stone age people. Their home is the Sierra Akari mountains. He described four months' travel to reach them in Natural History, the museum's publication.

"They live," he said, "in one of the densest jungles on earth, undisturbed by man. It is a country of peace and quiet, a literal lost world, a tropical fairyland."

When Dr. Holden and a single white companion, William G. Hassler, photographer, reached the Wai Wai, both medical tests and photography were welcomed. The villages were about a day's travel apart. This distance the Indians call a "short walk." Time has no meaning to them.

Strong on the Dogs.
They live in large, communal houses, with conical roofs. Each holds 25 to 30 persons and 40 to 50 dogs. These "fairyland" dogs are reasonably quiet.

Dr. Holden took the blood pressures of the older people. Their ages he said, were uncertain, because they reckon years from one rainy season to the next, but they live to a ripe old age.

Analyzing the reasons, Dr. Holden declared:

"The Wai Wai never have to worry how they will pay their grocer's bill. There are no telephones to drive them to distraction. A husband never worries about how he can buy his wife a new hat or dress. Their personal adornments are procured from the brilliantly plumaged birds that fly overhead; and as for clothes—they wear none."

"There is no stock market to send one's blood pressure skyrocketing. These fortunate people are not forever dodging automobiles or watching red lights in their hurry to keep this appointment or that. There are no such things as being late for work or punching the time clock."

Teletype System Warns Hotels of 'Deadbeats'

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—The hotel business has enlisted the aid of science in an effort to combat "skippers," "kitters," "paperhangers," and other types of unwelcome and dishonest guests.

Members of the Cleveland Hotel association have installed an inter-hotel teletype system to foil the chisellers.

When a suspicious guest with a splotchy manner checks in at a hotel, the visitor's description, approach and suspected racket is sent over the teletype system to the allied hotels, which then check their records.

"Cleveland hotels have been losing from $30,000 to $50,000 a year because of these crooks," said Eugene J. Kelly, president of the association. "We have had to do something. The hookup is in conjunction with the telephone company and may be linked with the police station later."

Old Rockefeller Stable Becomes Cleveland Inn

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—The lively stables built by John D. Rockefeller in 1888 are being transformed into the Stables Inn—an old English lodge for public dining.

The 11 stalls of the stables, which have been removed, once were occupied by Strong Ned, Gallant Steed, Flash Eye and other Rockefeller carriage horses.

The stall windows remain in the taproom and "tallyho" parlor. The president of the Stables Inn, Mrs. Mary Craig, said that Nelson and Lawrence Rockefeller are sending her the original nameplates and pictures of their grandfather's favorite horses, which will be placed over the stall windows.

Pupils Take Cats Along To Rat-Infested School

BOSTON.—Informed that pupils in a portable building on Westchester road in Jamaica Plain were forced to take their pet cats to school as protection against rats and mice, the Boston school committee indicated the district would be provided with new school quarters.

A delegation of parents, appearing Monday before the school committee, and Irving N. Drake, father of two of the 38 pupils, disclosed the rats and cats episode.

GIVEN 18 MONTHS TO LIVE, DAREDEVIL FOOLS HIS DOCTOR

Doomed to Be Helpless Cripple, He's Beating His Own Way Back.

ST. LOUIS.—Eighteen months ago Ray Woods, mild-mannered little daredevil who became the country's No. 1 bridge jumper, was told that if he lived he would be a helpless cripple.

That was on March 22, 1937, the day he jumped from the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge. He was blown off balance in the midst of his 186-foot plunge and was pulled from the water with several crushed vertebrae.

"He won't live 24 hours," physicians said.

Woods fooled them. He's the only man who ever jumped from the bridge and lived to tell about it.

"He'll be a bed-ridden cripple," the doctors later insisted. He fooled them again. Last summer he swam a mile every day.

"He'll never be able to walk," they said.

And Ray Woods intends to fool them on that one, too. He leaned on his crutches, smiled a determined smile and vowed:

"I'll be walking normally within a year . . . two years at the most."

Career Is Ended.

Then he added: "But I'll never dive again. Even if I regain the use of my legs, I could never stand the physical shock of striking the water. And even if I could I have no desire to dive now."

The same dogged courage that led him to defy death in countless high dives all over the country has enabled Woods to win at least a partial victory in his battle for recovery.

After the dive physicians diagnosed Woods' injury as a compound fracture of five vertebrae. Even if he lived, they reported, he would be a helpless invalid the rest of his life.

A month later, when Woods' wife, Bernice, and his mother brought him back to St. Louis he was paralyzed from the shoulders down. But an operation disclosed his spinal cord was not severed. A surgeon cut away part of the crushed third, fourth and fifth vertebrae, between the shoulder blades, relieving pressure on the spinal cord and allowing nerve impulses to pass through to the lower part of his body.

Treatments with a slow-wave electric generator stimulated his paralyzed muscles.

Says: "I'll Walk Again."

His wheel chair gave way to crutches and, with braces supporting his legs, he began to walk. Last spring he moved with his wife and father-in-law to a secluded lodge on the Meramec river, 25 miles from St. Louis.

There he spent every day in a swimming pool.

As the result of his exercise Woods' crippled legs are fully developed. He now weighs 150 pounds. During his 10 years of professional diving he was in perfect condition at 135 pounds.

Woods does not look upon his career as a diver with regret because it has left him, temporarily, at least, a cripple.

"I made all my dives for money, not for the thrill. The shock of striking the water after a 100-foot dive often left me unconscious. I was just like a boxer going into the ring. He knows he probably is going to be hurt and doesn't like it, but he wants the money."

"I dived because I loved to travel and that was the only way I knew to see the country and get paid for it."

I have no regrets. I've seen most of the United States, Canada and Mexico. I've crammed three ordinary lives of excitement and sight seeing into my 32 years. And before long I'll be walking again."

Canadian Gets Two-Year Jail Term; 'Happiest Man'

MONTREAL.—Romeo Perron, 33 years old, declared he was the "happiest man in the world" when he was sentenced to two years in prison here.

Perron walked into police headquarters one night and demanded that he be arrested and sent to prison because he had family troubles and wanted to learn a trade. Police refused.

Perron, after sitting around the station for several hours arguing with police, walked out and smashed the window of the nearest store, crawled in and sat on the floor to await policemen.

"You should have arrested me when I asked you," he told them when they arrived.

Perron was arraigned in court on a charge of breaking and entering, and, smilingly, he pleaded guilty, and asked the judge to send him to St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary for two years.

The judge granted his request.

WELL-FED LAYERS PRODUCE HEAVILY

Several Important Factors Must Be Considered.

By C. O. Dossin, Poultry Extension Specialist, Pennsylvania State College, WU Service.

Flocks of White Leghorns laying 50 per cent or better should consume at least 25 pounds of feed per 100 birds daily at this season of the year.

Size of bird, type of house, heated or non-heated, rate of production and use of lights are all factors which must be taken into consideration when figuring feed intake. Unless birds eat large quantities of feed they cannot maintain body weight and produce heavily.

Some poultrymen make a practice of feeding their birds all the scratch feed that they will eat at night and about half that amount in the morning. Fresh mash is usually fed each day. Increased feed intake can usually be obtained by stirring the mash in the feeders with the hand each time a trip is made through the building. The use of a fleshing mash or fleshing pellets at noon each day will also increase total feed consumption.

Some poultrymen make a practice of dabbling paint on the plumage of a few birds so they can be readily identified. These birds are then weighed at frequent intervals so as to keep a check on the weight of the flock.

Good Care and Feeding Thwarts Shipping Fever

Greater protection during shipment and careful management immediately after live stock arrives on the farm will lighten losses from shipping fever, says Dr. W. L. Boyd, Missouri university farm, veterinarian.

En route to the farm, either by truck or train, live stock is subject to many hazards—irregular feeding and watering, and bad weather among them. This applies especially to young stock, which may suffer serious loss in vitality. Regular feeding and watering plus protection against the weather will make the stock less likely to contract the fever.

Care and feeding of the animals once they are on the farm is the second important "ounce of prevention." Feed them a balanced ration, and don't attempt to get them on full feed too soon, cautions Doctor Boyd.

The use of vaccines and serums for the prevention and cure of shipping fever should be attempted only by trained veterinarians. To expect favorable results from vaccines, they should be administered soon after the animals arrive.

Houses Need Litter

Litter serves a triple purpose in the laying house. It serves to keep the floor warm, it helps to keep the house dry, and it provides material in which the birds can scratch. It is therefore necessary to have the floor littered for the pullets. The most satisfactory litter is highly absorbent and will not pack. Various materials are used, such as straw, peat, and oat hulls. These materials are placed on the floor of the poultry house to a depth of about 2 inches; when straw is used it should be applied to a depth of 6 to 8 inches.

In the Feed Lot

Potatoes to be fed to pigs should be cooked for best results.

Purebred pigs gain a third faster than scrubs, and on a fifth less feed for each pound of gain.

For best results in curing the meat, hogs should not be fed for 24 hours before slaughtering.

Disease bacteria hold annual reunions in uncleaned poultry houses and on contaminated ranges.

Eggs with a large amount of thick albumen poach better and stand up longer under storage conditions.

Each American farmer produces food and fiber for an average of three and a half persons in town.

Keep farm machinery under cover and it will grow old gracefully, advise agricultural engineers at Massachusetts state college.

Tennessee farm women are estimated to have saved $8,600 in a year's time by making their own bed mattresses.

About one-third of the farmers in the United States don't put all their eggs in one basket, but have an outside business or industrial income.

Some people believe that scrubs of purebred stock can not be given a pedigree. This is not true. Scrubs occur in all breeds of purebred stock.

NEW CHICKS EVERY MONTH GIVEN O. K.

Plan May Change Program On Many Poultry Farms.

By R. C. Ogle, New York State College of Agriculture, WNU Service.

New chicks, every month in the year, is the newest plan that is gaining in popularity among poultrymen.

This is a change from producing chicks in the natural mating season for birds or during the spring and early summer months. The new plan may change the entire poultry program, at least in the production of poultry meat and eggs.

It is a trend away from "putting all your eggs in one basket." Poultrymen who have adopted the new program say that the use of equipment throughout the year is efficient and that a more or less constant supply of new pullets, just starting to lay, should prove profitable.

Regardless of the method, early-hatched pullets, late-hatched pullets, or pullets on any other plan, can give results only in proportion to correct breeding, feeding, and management practices.

The profitability of a flock of laying pullets is determined largely by the number of eggs the pullets lay and the length of time over which they lay them. In general, birds of the Mediterranean varieties are best when they lay their first eggs at not less than 150 days after hatching, and birds of the American varieties not less than 180 days after hatching.

This provides enough days for birds to make good growth and brings them into production before the arrival of short days and cold weather.

Scurfy Skin Is One of First Effects of Lice

Lice are never found on fat cattle. Lousy animals are always thin, and the patches where the hair has fallen out give them a ragged and ugly appearance. This fact brings up a question—do lice make cows thin, or do thin cows simply acquire lice as a matter of course? Perhaps the question is not important; the important thing is to rid the animals of lice, asserts a writer in the Missouri Farmer. One first determines that an animal is lousy by its appearance—the first effects of infestation by lice are usually a scurfy skin and patches of hair falling out around the tail, head, or the withers. Unless the lice are killed, the animal may become very thin and lose much of its hair. Young calves are especially affected.

Lice are easily destroyed by a solution of standard stock dips.

Although a dipping vat is the easiest and most effective means of killing the lice on cattle, the expense of building and maintaining a vat for this purpose is too great to justify its use. It is not a big job to go over the herd by hand with a brush and the disinfecting solution. If this is done in the winter, a mild day should be selected. Ordinary powdered borax sprinkled along the top line of the animal from poll to tail will lessen the attacks of the lice until a more thorough job with a stock dip can be done.

Agricultural Notes

Farm fires cause an average loss in the United States of $7,500 a day.

Steers gain more weight at less cost when feeding is continued for 180 or 200 days.

More than 1,100,000,000 chicks are hatched in incubators annually in the United States.

Florida farms near Orlando, Florida, often harvest five crops annually from the same ground.

Farm tenants in Southeastern United States move every two or three years on the average.

Grain and hay which have become moldy from damage by water should be fed sparingly if at all.

The ability to lay eggs with thick whites is an inherited characteristic, according to poultry specialists.

With ducks the average incubation period is about 28 days; geese, 28 to 34 days; turkeys, 27 to 29 days.

Dairymen say a good test of feed is: "Does the cow like it well enough to eat all she needs?"

Inbreeding is the mating of animals more or less related in bloodlines. Line-breeding is the mating of animals that have little or no blood relationship.

Buckwheat is good when mixed with other grains but in small quantities, not more than one fourth of the total ration. It is better to feed it in winter than in summer.

CONVICT BECOMES WRITER OF TALES ABOUT CRIMINALS

Under Sentence for Murder Man Wins Recognition As an Author.

HUNTSVILLE, TEXAS.—Thomas F. Whiteside, serving a murder sentence in Texas state prison, is gaining recognition as a short story writer.

Two national magazines have accepted recent stories by Whiteside for early publication, prison officials revealed. Several other of his works have been published already, and his earnings from writings within "The Walls" have passed the $600 mark.

Whiteside, who was sentenced for the "threat" killing of his wife and once was classed as "incorrigible," finds solace during his loneliest hours in the experiences of O. Henry, who at one time was a prisoner, and the great writers of the more distant past who served sentences.

"It's so hard to do anything in stir—I can't put it on paper, the atmosphere is so terrible," Whiteside wrote once. "Stop and think—O. Henry, Cervantes, and all the rest of the glorified ex-cons made good 'after' their release. A man gets plenty of experiences in here, but it's hard to click. Bunyan did it, but he had religion. As for me, I've been roasting on the spit for years and there aren't many angels, I find, who'll moisten your tongue with kindness."

Formerly Houston Attorney.

Whiteside formerly was an attorney at Houston.

Shortly after he was "sent up," Whiteside was transferred to Eastham Farm—the "Alcatraz" reserved for incorrigibles from other units of the Texas prison system.

Whiteside first attempted to commit suicide by slashing his throat with the edge of a glass jar.

The baffled prisoner then learned that illiterate prisoners would pay him 15 cents each for letters he could write for them. In one case he wrote 150 letters for an old inmate, to be mailed at weekly intervals. The letters were addressed to the man's daughter, and were so worded that, as the daughter grew older, she finally would understand the disappearance of her father.

His Essay Won Prize.

Whiteside then submitted an essay which won a third prize offered by the National Prison congress. That award brought Whiteside's literary efforts to the attention of Prison System Manager O. J. S. Ellington, who thought the prisoner should be encouraged in his craft.

Whiteside was transferred to Harlem Prison farm at Sugarland, where he was assigned as a teacher and told he could write in his spare time. He wrote for the Prison Echo, publication of the prison system, and, with the aid of prison print shop Supt. S. H. Barnett, wrote a story entitled, "One Minute to Midnight," which he sold to a syndicate. The theme of the short-story was defeat of the criminal.

Within a short time, he also had sold two more stories to that syndicate, two to another syndicate, and an editorial, "Segregation Must Begin in Jail," to a detective story magazine.

Boy's Record as Runaway Piles Up Since Infancy

INDUSTRY, N. Y.—After returning James Rautsaw, 16, from his third escape trip this year, state industrial school authorities agree with the youth's relatives that it is difficult to keep him where he belongs.

Jimmy's record also includes 31 escapes—and apprehensions—in one year while committed to a detention house at Berkshires, Mich., authorities said.

The relatives, who live at near-by Penn Yan, revealed the boy's escapades began when, just out of the toddling age, he ran away on numerous occasions. In the hope that he might be "shamed" into staying home, they dressed him in girl's clothing.

A few hours later he was brought home by a social worker, who reported finding the "little lost girl" plodding along a road several miles from Penn Yan.

Worship Service—11 A. M.

The Ladies' Aid Society has set the day of Wednesday, Feb. 22, as the date of the annual Father-Son banquet at the church. This is one of the events to which we eagerly look forward each year and we are sure that this banquet will be just as enjoyable as the previous ones have been.

The Aid Society held a very enjoyable meeting with Mrs. Daube at her home last Wednesday with a good attendance. Mrs. Pederson led the devotionals and following the business session Mrs. Daube and her assistant, Mrs. Madison, served refreshments. The afternoon came to a close with the showing of motion pictures by Mr. Gallagher, Mrs. Daube's son-in-law, and which was much enjoyed. Mrs. Alice Meyer and her daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Wagner, will entertain the Society at the Meyer home for the next meeting on Wednesday afternoon Feb. 1st.

Rev. and Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Reinebach, Mrs. Hooper, Mrs. Hodgkins, Mrs. Daube, Mrs. Pedersen, Mrs. Helen Weber, Mrs. Swanson and Mr. and Mrs. C. Hamlin attended the District meeting at Waukegan and heard such interesting speakers as Rev. Fred D. Stone and O. W. Aumann of Chicago.

One-Woman Crusade Saves Sled Riders

Children Taught Keep Off Streets With Sleds.

SYRACUSE.—A one-woman crusade to reduce the toll of young lives taken by automobiles every winter as children play in streets with their sleds may become effective over the nation in cities where snow falls.

This is the opinion of accident prevention bureau experts here, who first became acquainted with the move when they saw in local papers this ad:

"I will give free every day two hours of my time and go to the park with children under 12 who want to sled ride, if they will not play in the streets with sleds. Mrs. Sankey, phone 5-8285."

Investigating, bureau officials found the advertiser to be Mrs. Leslie E. Sankey, a former nurse and mother of an 8-year-old son and a 12-year-old daughter.

"I saw a young boy coast down a hill into the path of an automobile," she explained. "It was awful, and I decided to see what I could do to prevent such accidents. So I formed a sled club."

Mrs. Sankey's method is simple. She agrees to give two hours of her time each day to take children to a park for sledding. In return, the children sign a simple pledge, reading:

"The undersigned promises not to play in streets with sleds."

Safety experts were enthusiastic and asked what they could do to help. Mrs. Sankey thought that perhaps the pledge would be more effective if a penalty was imposed for violation.

As a result, every club member must agree to forfeit his sled to the police if he or she should "forget" and use it in a street. So far, no sleds have been impounded.

Discovers Japanese Are Fooled on Soldier Ashes

NEW YORK.—More than 100,000 homes in Japan now harbor shrines to unknown soldiers which their owners mistakenly believe to contain the ashes of the son of the family, according to W. B. Courtney, associate editor of Collier's, who recently returned from covering the war in Asia.

"In humble homes all over Japan are enshrined small white boxes presumably containing the ashes of a soldier son killed in action in China," Courtney says. "But the fact is, although Japanese officials will deny it, that these boxes are likely to contain the ashes of a Chinese soldier, a Mongolian pony or even a Missouri mule; or perhaps just a spadeful of dirt."

"It may be that when Japanese soldiers die in hospitals their ashes actually are returned to their families. But when they are killed at the front their bodies, together with the bodies of Chinese and, under stress of rapid campaigning, even dead draft animals, are burned together in a great pyre. Then a sufficient quantity of the blended remains are shoveled into the little white boxes for shipment to Japan."

A great ceremony is made of the delivery of the little cedar boxes, each covered with white silk, Courtney says, but adds that occasionally skepticism is beginning to be expressed in private concerning the actual contents of the boxes.

Florida Farmers Plant 12 Million Pine Trees

TALLAHASSEE, FLA.—In the last eight years Florida farmers have planted 12,000,000 pine trees on their lands, the state forest and park service estimates.

In addition, forest companies and other agencies have planted another 6,000,000 trees.

Farmers and turpentine gum operators planted their trees at the rate of 1,500,000 a year, or an estimated 24,000 acres, while pulp mills, mining companies and forest and land operators set out another 750,000 annually on 12,000 acres.

An estimated 7,000,000 slash pine seedlings now are ready for sale to farmers and other land owners for planting between Dec. 1 and Jan. 15. They are sold at $2 a thousand.

Monster Spiders Feast On Birds in Australia

MELBOURNE, VIC.—Spiders that eat birds is the latest discovery in the land already famous for freak animals, birds and insects.

The spiders have been designated as Mygalas and the largest specimen found was about 9 inches in leg span with a body as large as a bantam's egg.

FARM TOPICS

CORN AND ALFALFA BEST LAMB RATION

May Need No Supplement if Both Feeds Are Good.

By W. E. Morris, Extension Animal Husbandman, University Farm, St. Paul, WNU Service.

Corn and alfalfa will make about the most profitable ration the lamb feeder can provide for his flock this winter. If both feeds are of good quality, it is doubtful, at present prices, that a supplement of any kind need be fed.

Whole shelled corn has been found a most suitable grain ration. When on full feed, lambs weighing from 60 to 85 pounds should eat from one and one-half to two pounds of grain per head daily, including any supplement provided, and from one and one-fourth to one and one-half pounds of hay. If a common roughage is used, such as prairie hay, a protein supplement should be fed at the rate of one pound daily to each five lambs. The supplement can be linseed oil meal, corn gluten meal, cottonseed oil meal, or soy-bean oil meal, depending on which is lowest in cost. If corn is not available, whole barley, oats, wheat or rye may be fed alone. Feeding oats alone, however, is not recommended for fattening lambs, but only for starting lambs on feed, and finally should not make up more than 25 per cent of the grain ration.

Lambs should gain at least one-third of a pound daily, making a gain of 25 to 30 pounds in 75 to 100 days of feeding. An efficient feeder will have his lambs fat enough to kill out well and suitable to the packer in that period of time. Slightly above 90 pounds is a good weight to begin marketing lambs, if they are fat.

Experiments show that it is best to feed all the grain lambs will clean up in about 20 minutes' time twice a day. Hay also is best fed twice daily. The hay should be fed after the lambs have eaten their grain.

Mentions Some Causes Of Soft Shelled Eggs

A number of things may cause hens to lay soft shelled eggs, among which are fright, close inbreeding, and diseases like fowl pox, coccidiosis, and laryngotracheitis.

Hens that are too fat may lay soft shelled eggs, the egg simply slipping through layers of fat too quickly to allow the shell to form. Excessive feeding of mangels or cabbage which causes looseness of the bowels may result in the appearance of many poor shelled eggs. But the chief cause of soft shelled eggs, according to an authority in the Missouri Farmer, is a low assimilation of lime by the layers. The lime may be available in the form of oystershell and still this will happen. The oystershell may become covered with dirt and hence be unappetizing, or vitamin D may be deficient which does not allow a proper assimilation. It is a good plan to keep the oystershell fresh, stir it daily or sprinkle some over the mash so as to stimulate consumption, and then make sure that the laying mash contains at least 2 per cent cod liver oil so as to insure a proper supply of vitamin D. Hard grit should also be available at all times.

It is important to guard against soft shelled eggs because it encourages the egg-eating habit which is so expensive when eggs are high in price.

Soy Bean Hay for Horses

If soy bean hay is well-cured, free from mold and dust, and was cut before the beans hardened too much, it may be fed to horses, says A. L. Harvey, division of animal and poultry husbandry, University Farm, St. Paul. Horses can be fed about as much soy bean hay as they will eat daily. When feeding the beans, it is best to grind or chop them and give them with other feeds. From one to two pounds of the beans can be fed in this manner to each horse per day.

Winter Greens for Poultry

Alfalfa hay, lespedeza, and clover hay make good greens for winter use provided they are so cured as to retain their green color. Alfalfa leaf meal, if a bright green color, makes a satisfactory green feed, but should not constitute more than 10 per cent of the mash, says a North Carolina Agricultural college authority. Where the hays are used, they should be fed in racks as the birds will eat only the leaves and the stems can then be thrown in the litter. Of the feed mentioned, green alfalfa hay is the most satisfactory.

'Red' Mites Attack Poultry

Mites are thieves that really do come in the night. Hidden away in cracks and crevices during the day, they steal forth and crawl over the hen's body when she goes to roost at night to feast upon her blood until their tiny bodies are distended and red in color, which doubtless gave them their name, "red" mite. Their bodies filled with warm blood, they stream back to their crevices where they carry out nature's plan of multiplication and growth.

Farm Team Runs Away

PET ALLIGATOR IS GOOD ALARM CLOCK

Wakens Neighbors at 5:30 With Yawning Roar.

GROTON, CONN.—John S. Hanover has a 19-year-old 200-pound alligator that serves as an alarm clock for his early-rising neighbors.

Promptly at 5:30 every morning the reptile, without any preliminaries, opens his massive jaws and lets out a mighty bellow.

Although Hanover has had his pet for 14 years, only his immediate neighbors have been aware of its existence. Others have probably wondered for years over the source of the weird roar that has snapped them out of a sound sleep seven days a week.

Alligators, outside of zoos, are unusual pets in New England. Hanover's was a foot long when his brother shipped it to him from Florida. Now it measures 6 feet and has survived the changeable climate with robust indifference.

"Despite the fact that such reptiles usually die when shipped north," Hanover said, "I don't see why an alligator shouldn't live to a ripe old age and a good length in New England, provided it receives the proper care."

Hanover has a couple of bathing pools, one in a heavy wire enclosure fixed to a cement base and another in the steam-heated cellar, where the reptile endures in the winter and early spring months. Hanover has the task of taking it inside in the fall and bringing it out in the summer. He first straps the alligator's jaws. Discovering that the animal's main power in its jaws is downward, only two fingers are required to keep the jaws closed until they are strapped. Then he tosses the 'gator under his arm and over his back so that the tail, just as dangerous as the jaws, is harmless. One swat of the reptile's tail is capable of breaking a man's leg.

The alligator, under normal conditions, should live to be more than 100.

Plan to Recover Sunken Gold Found Impractical

NEW YORK.—The plan to recover gold from sunken Spanish galleons is impractical, says Max Nohl, submarine explorer.

Nohl returned recently from undersea explorations along the coast of the Dominican republic. He was working there with Captain John Craig. Craig is still there searching for the gold.

"Craig is an optimistic sort of a chap," said Nohl. "He still thinks that there is some chance of finding some gold there. As for me, I think the prospecting must be much better in the Rockies than on the ocean floor."

"The trouble is that, due to the action of the sea, there is very little wood left of ships sunk even 20 years ago—let alone those sunk 400 years back."

"The records show that scores of galleons with gold from Peru were wrecked by storms in Mona passage. 'But all you ever find on the ocean floor is a bit of iron which indicates that here a ship came to its end, but you don't know whether it was a galleon of 1540 or an island trading vessel of 1905.'"

Bottle Note Is Delivered

ADELAIDE, AUSTRALIA.—Just 23 years after Lieut. Henry Blunt threw a bottle, containing a message to his fiancée, overboard from a troopship that was carrying him to the World War in 1915, the message was delivered. It was addressed to Miss G. M. Severn, then living in South Australia.

Recently the bottle was washed ashore about 60 miles from Albany. The finder forwarded the message as requested and it was delivered. Blunt in the meantime had married Miss Severn in 1919 upon his return from the war.

PREFERS JUNGLE FOR PEACE AFTER VAGABOND YEARS

Soldier of Fortune Finds Cities Are Dangerous and Disturbing.

NEW ORLEANS.—Howard M. Rinehart, Twentieth century Marco Polo, who has fought American savages, dug for gold on the Amazon, and flown for Pancho Villa, prefers the jungle for his peace and quiet.

Rinehart has been in the United States a year now, and is ready to return to the South American jungles. He thinks life in the city is too dangerous—that it overtaxes the heart and frays the nerves.

In contrast, life in the jungle is simple. The primitive Indians fight when they are mad, he says, and the wild animals kill only when they're hungry. Rinehart gives two simple rules to remember: stay away from the animals at meal time, and don't make the natives mad.

Rinehart was born at Dayton 53 years ago, but has spent the last 32 years, intermittently, following his quest for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. He's found it once or twice.

Found Gold and Gems.

After serving a time as wireless operator in Rio de Janeiro he ventured into the jungle in quest of gold. With primitive equipment he washed out 60 pounds of virgin gold, and nearly 1,000 carats of diamonds.

He started back to New York with his fortune to organize an expedition and return to the site. However, aviation was in its infancy in the United States and young Rinehart found himself associating with Wilbur and Orville Wright. It was Orville Wright who taught Rinehart to fly.

Rinehart became one of the "immortals" of aviation in 1913 when one of the most freakish accidents on record occurred.

He was flying an old-fashioned pusher biplane when a strut broke and knocked him unconscious and out of the plane. The machine, motor still running, swooped under Rinehart and caught him. It crashed in a graveyard, but when observers reached the scene Rinehart was sitting calmly on a tombstone uninjured.

Went Unpaid With Villa.

Later Rinehart joined forces with Villa, but the association was dissolved when the general's treasurer forgot to pay the flyer.

"I always liked Villa," Rinehart said, "but his pay-off man . . ."

The army didn't give Rinehart a commission and send him to France during the World War. He was too valuable. He was kept in the United States as a civilian test pilot.

The depression that followed the war wiped out Rinehart's possessions and he started for South America and the gold field again. Working alone and with scanty equipment, he washed out nearly 30 pounds of gold and 600 carats of diamonds. He invested the returns in equipment and started back into the jungle to make a big stake. The expedition lost everything while shooting rapids on the Amazon river, he said.

Since then Rinehart has lived in the jungle of South America almost entirely, digging herbs and plants for drug-importing houses. A year ago he returned to the United States, but he's had enough of civilization now.

Inventor Kills Himself

With Gun Made at Home

CHICAGO.—Valentine Horbiak, age 50, had a reputation as a master mechanic. He was an inventor, too, but his inventions never brought him recognition.

He decided recently to try again. He constructed a new device. He took a three-foot length of iron pipe, inserted a .38 caliber pistol cartridge and fashioned a breech lock with a small bit of cylindrical iron—almost a finished shotgun.

It lacked only a firing mechanism, so he kindled a fire in his back yard and thrust the breech of the weapon into the flames. A small boy watched curiously over a back fence as Horbiak seated himself before the fire, the weapon's muzzle pointed at his chest. The boy asked him what he was doing. "Testing invention," he mumbled.

He sat immobile. The heat increased. Finally there was a roar and he tumbled from his seat, the bullet from his homemade gun imbedded in his heart.

Flower Thief Is Invited To Complete His Looting

ST. THOMAS, ONT.—A thief who robbed a flower garden here has been invited by the owner to return and get the flowers he left behind.

The owner, after surveying his wrecked garden, inserted the following advertisement in a local newspaper:

"Will the person or persons who stole a dozen large hydrangea blooms about two weeks ago and 15 more three nights ago from the flower beds in front of No. 62 Elizabeth street return and get the few remaining blooms?"

Dog Saves Farmer

From Bull's Attack

BROCKVILLE, ONT.—A dog saved Fred Kerr from being trampled to death by a bull. Kerr was leading the bull to drink when it attacked him and threw him down. The bull was about to trample him when the dog distracted its attention.

As the dog kept worrying the bull, Kerr rolled along the ground to safety.

FARMER GOES BROKE AND NAMES WOMAN

Declares She Put Curse on Him 19 Years Ago.

DUBLIN.—A once prosperous West of Ireland farmer, Richard Smyth, 59 years old, of Ballsbridge, blames his bad luck on a woman. He says she laid a curse on him 19 years ago.

Ever since he has felt himself dogged by ill luck, he declares. Nothing he has tried has succeeded.

The curse, he insists, has cost him $50,000, forced him to sell his farm and go to Dublin to live with friends. The woman died seven years ago.

Smyth and the woman lived on neighboring farms. Only a narrow lane separated their lands.

"She was 50 years old," he said. "She never liked me, always wanted to get my farm. One day I seemed to have annoyed her. She cursed me, prayed that I would have nothing but bad luck as long as I lived."

"I had not meant any harm and did not mind her, but that evening I found two of my cattle dead. They kept on dying till they had all gone. Since that day I have had nothing but misfortune."

Smyth is sure his cattle did not die of a disease because veterinary surgeons examined the cattle but could not say what was wrong with them.

"I rented other farms later. Everything used to go well for a time, then my cattle used to start dying."

"My crops were unlucky, too. If I had a good crop of corn, bad harvest weather was sure to spoil it."

After the woman died Smyth was sure his luck would change, but it did not.

"Things were the same as before," he said. "Everything I tried failed me. Now, instead of having a farm of my own where my wife and I could live I am forced to live with friends."

Thieves Unknowingly Get 'Fatal' Scarab in Loot

PORT CHESTER, N. Y.—An ancient Egyptian scarab kept in an isolated spot in the Kendig mansion because its three previous owners had died suddenly has been stolen.

The beetle-shaped gem was stolen some time within the last 10 days in the furnished but unoccupied house owned by the five brothers and sisters of the Kendig family. The stone had been put away by their mother with strict orders to her children and the servants not to touch it. Thus it was left behind when J. R. Kendig, last of the family to live in the house, moved to other quarters some months ago.

The stone, fashioned into a scarf pin, had been worn by three men since it was found by a British mining engineer along the River Nile about 1900. The engineer died within three days after first sticking it into his necktie. His widow gave it to an American railroad official who died a couple of days later. Kendig's father was next to own the gem and he died in a few days.

The widow decided that because of the deaths she would not give the stone away. On her deathbed in 1917 she swore members of the family to keep the strange history of the gem a secret.

Its intrinsic value, police said, is small. The total loot obtained by the thieves amounted to about $1,000.

Feather-Tosser Woody Is Tossed Out of Wheat Pit

CHICAGO.—Woody Hockaday was tossed into the county hospital psychopathic ward recently for attempting to spread his feathers on the Chicago Board of Trade wheat pit.

The Kansan, who once showered Secretary of War Harry Woodring with feathers in a campaign for peace and failed in an attempt to reach President Roosevelt with another sackful, ran onto the trading floor shouting: "$1.50 wheat or bust."

The trading floor is limited to brokers. Guards seized him, and an unstrutted basket of feathers, at the first outcry.

Pet Fawn Chews Tobacco;

But It Must Be Fine Cut

SWAN CREEK, MAN.—The Erickson family of Swan Creek is not keeping a dog these days. The household has a pet fawn, Patsy. And she is creating nearly as much trouble for the Ericksons and the neighbors as anybody's dog.

Patsy was found last summer, and was so small that she was carried home in a jacket pocket. Since then she's grown considerably.

She now chews tobacco, ascertaining first that it's fine cut. She frequently raids neighborhood gardens.

Final Date For Job Insurance Payments Near

Chicago, January 25—Illinois employers have only five more days in which to make their final 1938 contributions to the State Unemployed Compensation Fund, if they wish to obtain offset credit on Federal excise payroll taxes.

If contributions are not paid the Division of Unemployment Compensation, 222 North Bank Drive, Chicago, by Monday, January 30th, employers will be required to pay delinquent contributions twice—once to the State and once to the Federal Government.

In issuing this warning to employers who are liable under the Illinois Unemployment Compensation Act, State Director of Labor, Martin P. Durkin, pointed out that employers can save 90 per cent of their 3 per cent Federal excise tax on payrolls by paying their State job insurance contributions in full by the due date, January 30th.

Sequoits Lose to Lake Forest H.S.

(By Scoop)
A field goal in the final minutes of the game enabled the Lake Forest Gold Coasters to nose out the Antioch Sequoits 25 to 24 in Antioch's fifth conference game held here last Friday night.

Trailing 16 to 11 at the half, the Sequoits rallied during the third quarter and at the start of the fourth quarter the Sequoits were ahead by a slight margin. The game saw-sawed back and forth during the final period until during the last three minutes the Gold Coasters' guard, Lindenmeyer, scored his only field goal of the game to cinch it for Lake Forest. During the last three minutes the Sequoits tried desperately to score that final basket, but couldn't quite make the grade. The game ended with the Gold Coasters ahead, 25 to 24.

In the opening game Antioch Lights were severely trounced by Lake Forest Seconds, 30 to 16. Knott was high point man for the Sequoits with 9 points. Gilroy was high for Lake Forest with 9 points also.

He is survived by his wife, Edna Volling Miller, to whom he was united in marriage last June 1 at Lake Zurich.

Also surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Miller, Lily Lake; four brothers, Roy, Albert, George and Victor; all of McHenry, and three sisters, Mrs. Frances Miller of Ringwood, Mrs. Lucille Laurent, Waukegan, and Lillian Miller, McHenry.

Aroma of Sauerkraut Ends Hunger Strike

When 25 prisoners in the Racine county jail went on a hunger strike recently, Sheriff Miles Hulett proved equal to the occasion.

The prisoners balked at assorted cold meat sandwiches and coffee offered them the previous evening.

They continued their strike in the morning when they were served sweet rolls and coffee. They declared they weren't getting enough to eat. But when the sheriff astutely served porkshanks and sauerkraut the prisoners' stubborn strike wilted. They ate heartily.
